

New Online Seminar: “Israel and The Six-Day War” Winter Semester 2020/21

Prof. Noam Zadoff
Institute of Contemporary History

622010 Online Seminar Contemporary History: Israel and The Six-Day War

The Six-Day War raged from June 5-10, 1967, resulting in a swift and surprising victory of Israel over its neighboring countries. As a result of this armed conflict, Israel gained control over relatively large territories and also within the Israeli society radical changes were taking place.

In this course, various texts will be read and analyzed that were written in the aftermath of the war. By that students will seek to have a better understanding of the impact of spring 1967 on Israeli society and politics until today.

Language of Instruction: English (exams and papers can be also written in German)

Online-enrollment required, starting on September 1st, 2020, on lfu:online