

New Interdisciplinary Course, WS 2020/21:

Technology in Society

800705 VU (2,5 ECTS) for MA students and 800903 VU (5 ECTS) for PhD students

Are you interested in learning about new technologies and their effects on society? Are Biotechnology, Big Data, Intellectual Property, Genetic Engineering, etc. topics that you think are fascinating? Then this interdisciplinary course offered by Prof. Dov Greenbaum from the renowned Interdisciplinary Center Herzliya in Israel is definitely something for you!

- ⇒ Offered as part of the interdisciplinary course program and generic competences for all Master & PhD students
- ⇒ Can be recognized as regular course or as an elective („Wahlfach“) for several study programs
- ⇒ Blocked course held online with new technological teaching methods
- ⇒ Language of Instruction: English
- ⇒ Link to enroll: https://lfuonline.uibk.ac.at/public/lfuonline_lv.home?sem_id_in=20W&suche_in=technology+in+society

Prof. Dov Greenbaum,
Director of the Zvi Meitar Institute for Legal Implications of Emerging Technologies at the Harry Radzyner
Law School, IDC Herzliya (Israel)

and

Researcher at the Department of Molecular Biophysics &
Biochemistry,
Yale University (USA)