

University of Innsbruck Course Catalog

1. Visit the website www.uibk.ac.at

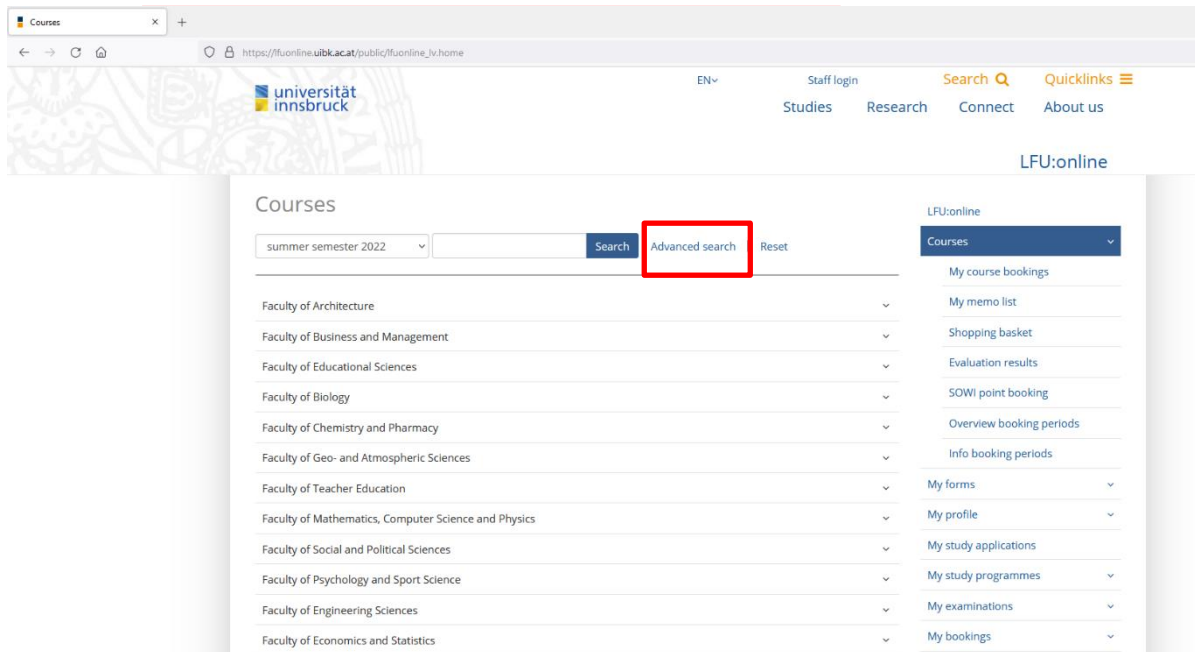

At the top, change the language from German (DE) to English (EN).

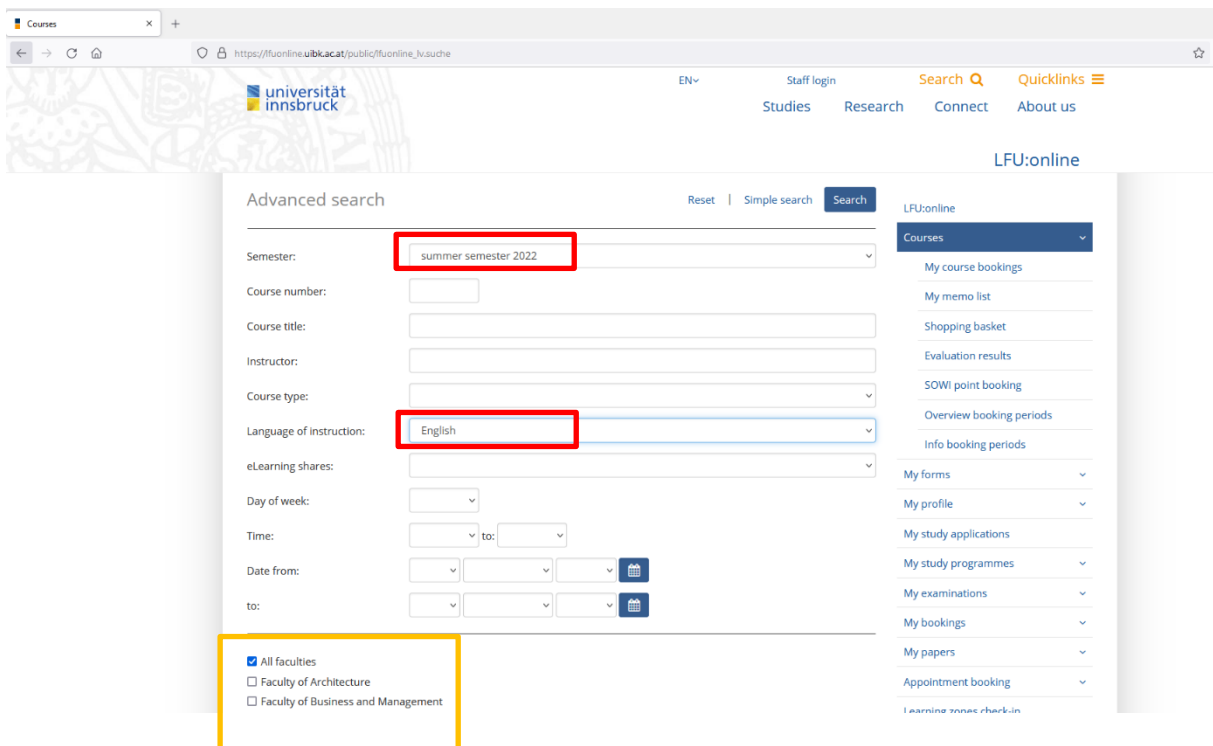

2. Click on “Quicklinks” on the top right corner, then click “Course Catalog”.

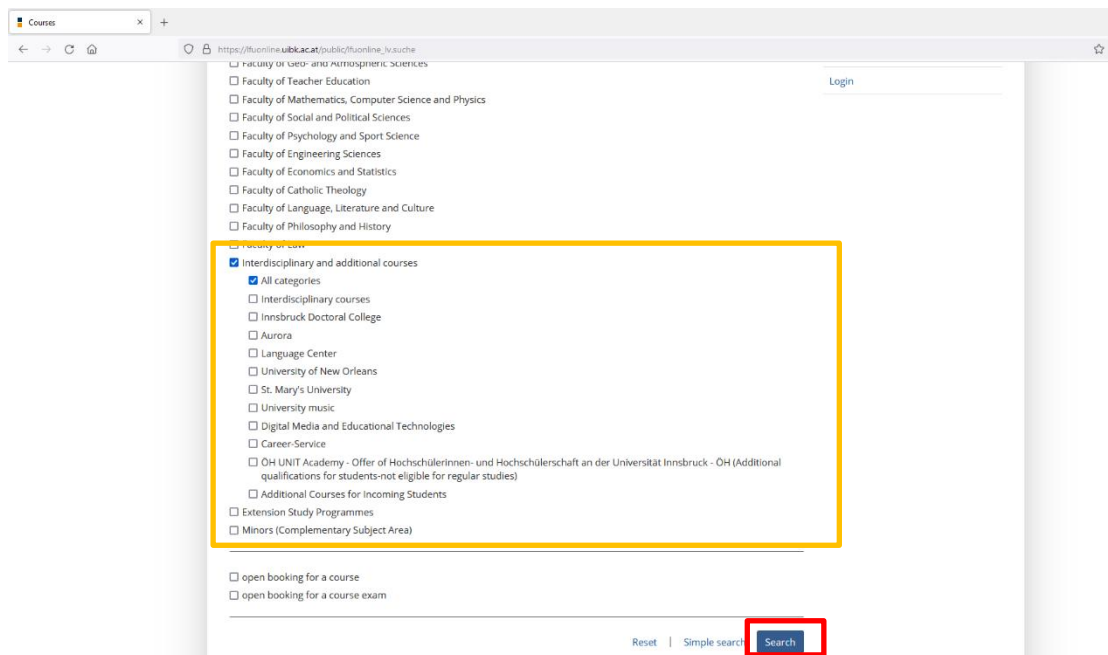

3. Click on “Advanced search”.

4. You can choose between the current and past semesters. Choose your faculty and study programme and make sure the “Language of Instruction” is English. Then click “Search”. If you scroll down further, you can find all faculties and study programmes. Choose your preferred faculty and find the specific BA, MA or PhD programme. Also, check out courses from different faculties and departments as there might be interesting courses for you as well. Check the category “interdisciplinary and additional courses”.

5. You will find all details and information on a course if you click on it (which department, professor, how many ECTS, etc.). Make sure the language of instruction is English! To find out how the course is structured (e.g., seminar, workshop, lecture) and get the English translation from the German terminology click here: <https://www.uibk.ac.at/fakultaeten-servicestelle/englische-bezeichnung.html>

| | |
|--------------------------|--|
| Department: | Department of Educational Science |
| Instructor: | Michael Ian Rasell, +43 512 507 40012 |
| Course number: | 603709 |
| Title: | SE Principles of Educational Science: Advanced II: Disability Studies: Research for Activism, Human Rights and Social Change |
| Type/hours: | SE 2 |
| ECTS credits: | 7,5 |
| Period: | every 2 weeks |
| Mode of repetition: | annually |
| Language of instruction: | English |
| Learning Outcome: | After completing the seminar, students will have expanded their knowledge of theoretical concepts, key works and empirical research in the field of Disability Studies. |
| Contents: | This seminar will focus on the connections between Disability Studies (theory and research) and activism. Students will learn how social change and human rights can be achieved. The seminar explores how Disability Studies research can identify and challenge the institutional, cultural, social and legal processes that contribute to the exclusion and discrimination of persons perceived as being disabled. The analyses will be framed around topics of human rights, inclusion and equality in line with the UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities and the Sustainable Development Goals. |
| Methods: | A variety of interactive methods will be used to deepen understanding of Disability Studies and develop fluency in spoken and written English. These include all-class discussions, small group work, presentations and short essays. |

6. IMPORTANT: If you are interested in taking any Business or Economic courses, please let us know ASAP! The course registration will be different from for other courses!